The United States Distance Learning Association (USDLA) presents a week-long campaign that will help to increase the awareness of distance learning among K-12, Higher Education and Corporations.

Central Texas College, Killeen, TX – 2018 – National Distance Learning Week (NDLW) will be observed on November 5th through the 8th. A series of virtual events and online information and resources will be available at the Distance Education website (www.online.ctcd.edu) during that week, to celebrate distance learning and to educate the general public about online learning. Learn how distance education can help you achieve your educational goals, and become familiar with the services that are available to the CTC distant learner.

All online activities are open to the public, everyone is invited to participate!

“Central Texas College is a recognized leader in providing educational opportunities to students all over the world through various campuses, multiple site offices, and the Distance Education and Educational Technology (DEET) program. CTC's online degree program ranks among the largest of all two-year institutions, allowing military and civilian students to achieve their educational goals regardless of their location, job, or family obligations," says Sharon Davis, Dean of Distance Education and Curriculum Development at Central Texas College.
